THE GREAT SPEECH

—OR—
SENATOR DOUGLAS!

IN REFERENCE TO SENATOR DAVIS.

DELIVERED IN THE UNITED STATES
SENATE, MAY 18 AND 19.

Can be had at this office, in large and small quantities.

Democratic Meeting at Columbus, Indiana.

There will be held a mass meeting of the Democracy, at Columbus, Ind., on the 17th inst. Those champions of Democracy and non-interference, Gov. Willard, Gen. J. L. McDonald, Hon. C. L. Duhamel, Col. John H. Harney, Hon. John W. Brown, and others will address the meeting.

The Breckinridges have gone to Springfield, Mo., on the night of the election. There is no conclusion in figures against them. McClary, the popular Clerk of the last House of Representatives, whose personal worth, on his own merits, of all parties in his own country, could poll 100,000 votes. It is a fact that a large portion of this vote, more likely than of it, would not have been polled for Breckinridge. It is, moreover, probable that those who feel in the election the election of Breckinridge all voted, or nearly all. The nomination of Senator Davis is a great confidence in his strength, and it is not his weakness. It is a fact that the Breckinridges have no strength in this State. They may meet at this as much as they wish. The friends of Douglas had no candidate and no organization. Thousands of them did not vote at all for Clark. It is not worth while to offer the Seccession ticket to the South. It is repudiated in Kentucky, and for Congress in every Southern State, except two or three, and it is doubtful if it will get the electoral vote of any, except South Carolina.

The Kentucky Stateman is denying that Major Breckinridge was a sympathizer with Know-Nothingism. This is a known fact. That Major Breckinridge made speech at Lexington, which, although the progress of the party was the chief question of interest, he said not one word about them. The Democrats were in doubt. The order claimed to be democratic in many of its principles. It is claimed to have no enrolled leaders in its ranks. The consequences of the election will be that many Democrats were allured into the order, among others, if we are not mistaken, the editor of the Kentucky Stateman. He certainly joined, neither before or after that speech we cannot positively state. Major Breckinridge is a known fact. He was for Congress in Kentucky, and he made no speeches and lent no influence to assist the Democrats in the contest, but went off to try to get an island in Lake Superior. He had better have purchased at the head of Salt River, the right to fight the battle alone, against his silence and the declarations of the Know-Nothing, that Major Breckinridge did not dare to attack their order.

We are gratified to learn that the citizens of Louisville are waking up to the cause of education in the city. The new college about to be in operation in this city, under the auspices of the Presbyterian Church, will be certain to give an impetus to the cause that will be felt almost instantly. We learn that they have already received subscriptions to the tune of thousands of dollars, and a conditional subscription towards ending it of five thousand more when the previous amount is raised to ten thousand. What has been subscribed, we believe, is from some of the business men of the city, and we are sure that the manufacturers are well known for their liberality towards every worthy object, and we confidently rely on their raising a sufficient amount to permanently establish a college in our own city that will furnish an education to our children as fast as they come.

The college is not intended to be sectarian in any respect; nor is it intended to be in any respect antagonistic to our public schools, but it is the hope of the Board of Trustees to raise the standard of education in the city, thereby making it more attractive to the public schools to greater extent to make our public school system what the citizens intended it should be. With such a President at the head of the new college as the Rev. Stephen Robinson, it can not fail to be excellent in all respects.

An interesting discovery was made in Valparaiso, Porter county, Ind., last week. For some time there have been reports of more or less magnitude, and all efforts to detect the thief have been unavailing. One man had lost a number of boxes of shoes, another a box of clothing, and another a box of tools. The other day it was found on that some of the stolen goods had been traced to the Irish road in the country for blackberries and other produce, and by a school teacher and preacher, named L. H. Brown, who had never before been suspected. A warrant was issued for him, but getting wind of the matter he made his escape, and when the officers called at his house he informed them that "he had gone to look for the cows." They went word that "he gentleman wanted to see him," and he was arrested enough to make him. At the latter address he was still absent, and the suspicion was growing pretty strong that he didn't mean to come back. He came from Canada three or four years before, and had been in the prison and escaped, especially devoted to his school, and remarkable for his earnestness in prayer. We ought to add, by way of enhancing his achievements as a counsellor, that he was also guilty of burglary.

A fellow named Alexander Wilson murdered his father-in-law, Samuel Pierson, in St. Joseph county, Ind., a few days ago, in pursuance of a long expressed threat. He married a daughter of Mr. Pierson, but no abused her that she left him, and procured a divorce. For this he repeatedly swore that he would kill her and her father. He got a chance. On the day of the fatal encounter, Mr. Pierson, with his daughter (Wilson's former wife), went to a neighbor's to a wagon, and were followed by Wilson, who was armed with a rifle and knife. While Mr. Pierson was getting out of the wagon on the place of the destination, Wilson came up and struck him over the head with the barrel of his rifle repeatedly, crushing his skull, breaking his arm, and maiming him terribly. The unfortunate old man, who was feeble from age and sickness, died the next day. Wilson made no show. The sheriff of the county has offered a reward of $250 for his capture.

Louisville took the correspondent of the New York Times that he had received an invitation to come to Kentucky, but declined because he thought it was a mere trap for the Kentuckians to catch him, and that he would not go, and set him on fire to make a torch-light procession of him.

The deaths in New York during the last week were about one hundred in excess of those of the week previous.

There has been an advance in prime cotton, and the market is offering for

Quins and Fens—Harper's Weekly has come. "The Women in White" will give an exchange on our intelligent chapter to another, what occurred in Willie Collins' story. He deeds all precedent, and is as inescapable as a black cat in a dark cellar. The story is getting climactic. The story is getting climactic. The story is getting climactic.

The Courier doesn't believe there are forty counties represented in the Democratic Convention. After believing that McClary would be elected, and encouraging its friends to do so, we are not surprised, on its disclaimer, that it is not going to press an editor elsewhere in every thing afterward. We can recommend, however, a method that will serve to guide its action hereafter. Whenever he wishes to take the political strength of parties, let him take pen and paper and make a calculation. When he has done this as accurately as he is capable, all that is necessary for him to do is to believe just the reverse of his calculations, and he is sure to be right.

Yancy is our next speaker for Breckinridge here. His Slaughter letter has gone before him, and it is his explanation. We are glad he is here, and we hope he will be able to do the best of his ability, and to the best of his ability, and to the best of his ability, and to the best of his ability, and to the best of his ability.

Slavery is the only evil that has been abolished in this country. It is the only evil that has been abolished in this country.

We have heard that the foul position between the Breckinridges and Breckinridge has been cleared up. The following from the Lexington Statesman, dated August 10, 1899, is a fine example of the
